"Sunny" Harwood at 18 months - Not a care in the world!

MAIN STREET APPOMATTTOX - THEN

Then And Now

By Frances H. Paulette

"Sunny, What Can You Tell Us?"

THEN and NOW - - just what do these words imply? Change, of course; sometimes quite drastic, again very subtle. A person, place, or set of circumstances today as compared to the same individual or situation in "by gone days" is always interesting to note.

Often we travel down the roads of yesterday with laughter as our companion; another time we might have sorrow for a partner as looking back brings tears with remembering.

In this column we have visited on Main Street, Appomattox, quite a bit. We have mentioned Virginia's Bonnet Shop (maybe one day we will go in for a visit), paid a long, leisurely visit to L. E. Smith, General Merchandise, spent time in the Corner Drug Store and visited the Telephone Company that was owned and operated by Herbert C. Pulliam. This week won't you join me for another walk down Main Street, Appomattox? Come on, let's go!

Just look where our stroll had led us - - exactly where Main Street intersects with Church. Directly in front of us is the Appomattox Hardware Co. I wonder just how long this business has been serving the people of Appomattox? If we can find "Sunny" Harwood he can tell us. Just who, some of you may ask, is this "Sunny"?

Alfred Rice Harwood, Jr. has lived in the same location where he was born but in a different house. The house in which "Sunny" now resides was built in 1918. "Sunny" as he is affectionately known to his host of friends and business associates is the only son of the late Alfred Rice Harwood and Bessie Hamner Sears Harwood.

"Sunny" graduated from Appomattox Agricultural High School in 1930 as president and valedictorian of his class. He attended VPI for two years, but due to the depression was forced to leave school and get a job. Working for the Morton Manufacturing Company of Lynchburg (now A. H. Robbins Co.), he left after two years to begin work as a bookkeeper under the instruction of Frank Dresser who was soon to leave the Hardware to take over the Appomattox Battery Company.

After the death of Tadd Sears in 1936 "Sunny" took over the duties of store manager for Appomattox Hardware and has most capably filled the position until the present time. There was one period from October 1941 until August 1945 when he served with the United States Army. "Sunny" spent thee and one-half years overseas in the European Theatre of operations with the 34th. Infantry Division and later with the Stars and Stripes, the army newspaper. Serving in Ireland, England, France, Belgium and Germany he was discharged as a Technical Sgt.

Twice married, his first wife was Violet Ramsey Harwood who was killed in a tragic car accident on February 20, 1971. His second wife is Marion Ford Harwood.

At present "Sunny" is vice-president and manager of the Appomattox Hardware Company, President of Appomattox Truck and Tractor, Chairman of the Board of Directors for the Farmers National Bank and Treasurer of Liberty Baptist Church.

Wow! that was quite impressive, wouldn't you agree? Sounds almost as if we were paying tribute to someone "gone on"! Well, one thing is certain and sure - - - "Sunny" hasn't "gone on"; he's "going on" and going strong. If I can catch him still long enough for a visit he'll tell us about the Hardware in the days of THEN. Like to join me next week? I hope you can find the time.

For 100 years farmers have been among Fidelity's most important customers. During that century, we have found out for sure: farming is the most individual business in the world.
There aren't any quick and easy formulas because every farmer has his own individual problems. And whether your situation calls for a loan from us, a personal introduction to one of the many government agencies set up to assist farmers, or simply some sound financial advice, we're the kind of bank who will get down to business with you in the kitchen over a cup of coffee.
You're in a complicated business. Money management is as important as land management. Maybe more important. That's where we come in. First to talk with you...then to work with you. Farming is your business; financial management is ours. Let's get together.

Health-wise

By Marylou Blosser, RN

Home Safety

Deaths from accidents in many areas of the world are exceeded only by deaths from cardiac disease and cancer. Many of these accidents happen at home.

Awareness of dangers in the home and recommendations for safety instructions are everyone's responsibility Householders should try to make their own home as free from hazards as possible.

Injuries associated with falls are high on the accident list. Prevention?

1. Have a secure handrail on all stairs.
2. Make sure stairs are well lighted.
3. Keep stairs clear of all obstructions.
4. Observe proper design of basement stairs. They should not be too steep but should have a moderate slope.
5. Mend all dress hems and cuffs of pants. Hems or pants cuffs that sag can cause one to trip.
6. Be selective in the use of floor polish. Floors should not be so highly polished that they are slippery.
7. Avoid scatter rugs that do not have nonskid pads under them.
8. Use nonslip pads in the bath and a nonslip safety rail helps prevent skidding when the feet are wet.

Safety precautions are especially important when a person is over 65. Elderly people may lose their balance, have poor vision. More common-sense safety tips are: Don't stand when you feel faint or dizzy. Tape all electric extension cords to the wall to keep from tripping over them. Wear shoes with rubber soles.

Many fires are started each year by the careless use of matches, and smoking in bed results in many deaths each year. Every home should have a fire extinguisher.

Drug poisoning in adults often results from the theory that if one pill is good, many must be better! Medications from your doctor are prescribed according to your own particular need. Follow carefully the physician's instructions on the label. If you are under a physician's care, do not take any medication, not even the nonprescription type, without telling him.

Everyone needs to take the time and effort to study the conditions in his own home, to reduce the toll of accidents.

A community service of the Health Department, General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists.
